Copyright Renfrewshire Council 2016

This book is dedicated to the Buddies' who paid the supreme sacrifice, during and sometimes long after the dark days of World War One. Some fell on the battlefield some died of hideous wounds and others from appalling horrible diseases. It's also dedicated to my dear grandson Matthew Nicol, may he live a long, healthy and peaceful life, full of love with an abundance of happiness.

"Dedicated to the honoured memory of the men & woman of Paisley who gave their lives in the Great War.
Remember them with Gratitude".

Preface and Acknowledgements

In 2009 I began looking into the Paisley “Buddies” that paid the supreme sacrifice for their King and Country during the First World War. My interest in this field was derived from a long interest in genealogy and the research of my own family tree whereupon I learned more of my great uncle, Hugh Cameron Smith who, as a private of the King’s Liverpool Scottish was killed at Arrowhead Copse, Guillemont on the Somme aged just 17. He was just one of many Paisley men who gave their lives for their country and indeed my family tree and that of my wife Janet includes a further 5 family members from the wider family circle.

In researching this book my starting point was William Lochhead’s “Paisley’s Fallen in the War 1914 ~ 1918”, published in 1920. Another source was William John Nixon & Lt John McCulloch Young’s “Wasted Journey”. I felt that those who died after the war as a result of injuries sustained deserved to be honoured and this book includes many more Paisley men who died between August 1914 and the end of 1926 where their death was attributed to wounds sustained on the battlefields of the First World War.

Over the last couple of years I have been grateful for the assistance of many individuals who have helped review newspaper obituaries from August 1914 through to the end of 1926 as well as carrying out research online. I would especially like to thank David Weir, Heritage Coordinator of the Heritage Centre, at Paisley Central Library and his colleagues; John Butler, Claire Cabrie, Marie Collins, Carol Craig, Pamela Logue, Pauline McDougall, Denise Williams, Colin Stewart and Bryan Smith who’s enthusiasm and willingness to help was greatly appreciated.

More help came from some of my friends and fellow members of the Renfrewshire Family History Society, namely Christopher (Chris) McMenemy, Wilson McNair, Peter Hutchison and Gilbert (Bert) Wilson who from June 2014 assisted in the enormous task of checking local newspapers.

I also want to thank the staff of Woodside Cemetery, Frank McFadyen, Mary Allen and Fiona Walsh, I greatly appreciated all of the help you gave over the years. Also Donna Smith, Cemeteries Admin Assistant at Renfrewshire Council, your help was greatly appreciated.

My sincere thanks to my son John for coming to my rescue by offering his very valuable assistance, especially his computer skills and his additional suggestions, and finally for proof-reading and correcting all my mistakes – all of which took a great deal of time.

And last but not least - Janet, my loving wife for all her support and encouragement and for putting up with me over the years.

HE whom this scroll commemorates was numbered among those who, at the call of King and Country, left all that was dear to them, endured hardness, faced danger, and finally passed out of the sight of men by the path of duty and self-sacrifice, giving up their own lives that others might live in freedom.

Let those who come after see to it that his name be not forgotten.

Among the many gifted 'Paisley poets' was Neil McFadyen a music hall entertainer and song writer. On the 22nd May 1915, a fortnight after the German submarine U-20 sunk the Lusitania resulting in the deaths of 1,198 people, Neil enlisted at the Drill Hall Paisley with the Seaforth Highlanders (Service No. S/8531). A medical examination however revealed that he suffered from Cardiac Vascular Disease and this resulted in him being discharged on the 1st June as not likely to become an efficient soldier. Still determined to serve his King and Country he went to Whitehaugh Barracks, Glasgow Road and signed up as a sapper with the Renfrewshire Royal Engineers (Service No. 1353) deliberately concealing the fact that he had been discharged from the Seaforth Highlanders on health grounds. Neil served in Egypt and on the Western Front before being invalided to Britain and finally demobbed from the armed forces on the 14th December 1918

THE PAISLEY KHAKI LAD

Now he's left his home behind him,
And a khaki dress you'll find him,
With a gun upon his shoulder on parade,
For his King and Country need him,
So we're proud to dress and feed him
A Paisley lad to swell an old brigade.
He will strengthen our battalions,
For the German force of millions;
He's really dead in earnest – it's no fad.
Now we miss him at the corner,
Since he went to check the foreigner,
For he's dauntless, is the Paisley khaki lad.

Down from Charleston to Sneddon,
Seemed like one gigantic wedding,
As we bade the lad adieu with mighty cheer,
Or from the barracks to the station,
We could gaze with admiration
On the lad for whom his mother shed a tear.
And the lad with lass to love him,
She would place no one above him,
Nor yet the child who proudly called him "Dad,"
Or the wife that good-bye waved him,
Roused his blood and only braved him –
A warrior is the Paisley khaki lad.

We took him off the High Street,
From the Causeyside and bye street,
From Castlehead, we called on Espedair,
And the Glasgow Road young swanker
Went and made himself a ranker,
With gun beside the Sneddon lad he's there;
And from Underwood to Broomlands
They have hastened to the doom lands,
In Meikleriggs we find no single cad,
And we still go on recruiting,
But the lads' socks need refooting, –

By Neil McFadyen, 24 Seedhill Road, Paisley

DEAD COMRADES

When merry souls have gone to rest,
And children sleep at mother's breast;
A mother lies, in thoughts sincere,
To think – and shed a silent tear.

The children play round mother's knee,
And Daddy's face they long to see;
Speak not his name, or else, we fear,
The mother sheds a silent tear.

The war is o'er, the battle won,
A mother's dream is of her son;
In fancy she can see him near –
Alas! To shed a silent tear.

A father's love, a fond good-bye,
This son is leaving home to die:
The memory of the past is clear –
And, thus, a father's silent tear.

The family group, the vacant chair,
A brother still is missing there:
In fancy they his footsteps hear –
Within the group, a silent tear.

The lover's path, the twilight kiss,
A maiden now finds one amiss,
And all the world seems lone and drear –
A maiden sheds a silent tear.

With British manhood, British blood,
The fields of Flanders were in flood,
When to our prayers God lent His ear –
A nation wrapped in silent tear.

THE SOLDIER'S GRAVE

"Unknown British Soldier" were the words I found inscribed
On a cross that marked a fallen soldier's grave;
No grand majestic statue, nor do flowers adorn the earth,
No gilded mark of honour for the brave.
In a battered wood unsheltered stands a rough and shoddy cross,
With no one near to cast a loving eye;
As I stood and pondered sadly on his loving ones at home,
Could I refrain to gaze on it and sigh?

Refrain.
He's some mother's son, some father's boy,
Some lover's sweetheart, somebody's joy;
A wife may be waiting and children with smiles –
Somebody loves him in the dear British Isles.

On the cross there hangs a bonnet which in life he used to wear,
On the bonnet there's a tassel coloured red,
It was placed there by his comrades as a token of respect,
To them a fond remembrance of the dead.
And when the grave is covered by the mantle of the snow,
And the bonnet there in silvery white is clad,
There's a heart at home that's aching for the hero down below,
With recollections of a British lad.

Refrain.
I can picture in my fancy his old mother o'er the sea,
Who is longing for a letter day by day;
Or a sweetheart treads the pathway where he often used to roam –
No more that old familiar path he'll stray.
Or a loving wife and mother with his children round her knee
May be showing them a picture of their dad.
There's a heart will break with sorrow,
For again she'll never see
Upon this earth her noble soldier lad.

Lines written on seeing a grave in France marked 'Unknown British Soldier, by Neil McFadyen, [Sapper (1353) Royal Engineers] 24 Seedhill Road, Paisley.

This book highlights the town of Paisley and the part it played during the Second World War. From its heroic sons and daughters who served their King & Country in the armed forces, to the ordinary townsfolk who faithfully volunteered their service in whatever way they could. Tragically some, like their 'brothers in arms' paid the Supreme Sacrifice.

An e-Book was published by Amazon during September, which was followed by a hard copy in December. On sale at £5.99 from Paisley Museum, High Street, Abbey Books, Well Street, Paisley Thread Mill Museum, Seedhill Road & Paisley Abbey, gift shop.

They went with songs to the battle, they were young,
Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow.
They were staunch to the end against odds uncounted,
They fell with their faces to the foe.

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old:
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.
